

1 See Decl. of Michael Cannon, Ex. B ¶ 41. To date, Plaintiff's FBI name check is incomplete and 2 ongoing and her N-400 remains pending. Id. at ¶ 16; Ex. B, ¶ 41.

3 On November 9, 2007, Plaintiff filed a Complaint in Mandamus asking this Court to 4 require Defendants to properly adjudicate her pending application. [Doc. No. 1.] Defendants 5 move to dismiss the complaint on the grounds that mandamus relief is unavailable because 6 Plaintiff's naturalization application is in the process of adjudication and remains in the 7 background investigation phase. [Doc. No. 3.]

8 9 Legal Standard

10 "Mandamus is an extraordinary remedy and is available to compel a federal official to 11 perform a duty only if: (1) the individual's claim is clear and certain; (2) the official's duty is 12 nondiscretionary, ministerial, and so plainly prescribed as to be free from doubt, and (3) no other 13 adequate remedy is available." Kildare v. Saenz, 325 F.3d 1078, 1084 (9th Cir. 2003).

14 15 Discussion

16 Defendants challenge the subject matter jurisdiction of the Court to entertain this 17 action and move to dismiss the complaint pursuant to Rules 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6). Other 18 courts in this district have found that there is no subject matter jurisdiction over complaints
 19 pending an application for naturalization where the FBI name check is pending and USCIS
 20 has not conducted an interview. See Dairi v. Chertoff, No. 07cv1014, 2007 WL 3232503, *1 21 (S.D. Cal. Nov. 1, 2007). ("[T]here appears to be no legal basis for the court to exercise 22 subject matter jurisdiction over the action to compel Defendants to proceed with the 23 naturalization interview."); Song v. Chertoff, No. 07cv0855, 2007 WL 3256201, *1 n.1 (S.D.
 24 Cal. Nov. 1, 2007) (holding that there was no jurisdiction under 8 U.S.C. §§ 1447(b), 1421(c)
 25 or "under the provisions cited in his responsive brief"). See also Sehari v. Gonzales, No.
 26 07cv0295, 2007 WL 2221053, *1 (S.D. Cal. July 31, 2007) (granting the defendant's motion 27 to dismiss, in part, as to the USCIS Defendants). For the reasons stated below, this Court 28 agrees with the other courts in this district that have addressed this issue and GRANTS

1 Defendants' Motion to Dismiss.

2 I. Plaintiff's Request for Relief under the Mandamus Statute

3 The Court FINDS that Defendants have satisfied their evidentiary burden to show 4 Plaintiff's application for naturalization is in the process of adjudication and therefore 5 Plaintiff's claim is neither clear and certain nor one subject to nondiscretionary, ministerial
 6 duties. While Defendants have the nondiscretionary duty to adjudicate Plaintiff's
 7 application, the USCIS has a great deal of discretion in how they process the congressionally
 8 mandated background investigation. The procedure includes an examination that may only 9 occur after the completion of extensive criminal background checks, and a "definitive 10 response from the Federal Bureau of Investigation that a full criminal background check has 11 been completed." 8 C.F.R. § 335.2(b); Ex. A ¶ 17. Plaintiff's FBI name check is still 12 ongoing so no examination of Plaintiff has taken place. Since Plaintiff's application has not 13 been denied and she has not been examined, this Court does not have jurisdiction to review
 14 her complaint. See 8 U.S.C. §§ 1147(a)-(b).

15 II. Plaintiff's Failure to Provide a Federal Question

16 A federal court has jurisdiction as to a federal question where (1) the claim turns on an 17 interpretation of the laws or Constitution of the United States, and (2) the claim is not 18 "patently without merit." Saleh v. Ridge, 367 F. Supp. 2d 508, 511 (S.D.N.Y. 2005). As 19 discussed above, Plaintiff's application is patently without merit. Her application for 20 naturalization has not been denied and she has not been examined which leaves her without a 21 mechanism for judicial review. Thus, this Court DISMISSES her complaint for lack of 22 subject matter jurisdiction as to the presence of a federal question.

23 III. Plaintiff's Request for Relief under the Administrative Procedures Act

24 Contrary to Plaintiff's assertion, the Administrative Procedures Act ("APA"), 5 25 U.S.C. § 701 et seq., does not provide an independent basis for jurisdiction. Califano v.
 26 Sanders, 430 U.S. 99, 107 (1977); Staacke v. U.S. Secretary of Labor, 841 F.2d 278, 282
 27 (9th Cir. 1988). Instead, it merely provides the standards for reviewing agency action once 28 jurisdiction is established. Staacke, 841 F.2d at 282. Additionally, the APA is specifically precluded where "agency action is committed to agency discretion by law." Yan v. Mueller,

No. H-07-0313, 2007 WL 1521732, at *8, 5 U.S.C. § 701(a)(2) (precluding APA review of agency actions that are “committed to agency discretion by law.”). As discussed above, the procedure of the USCIS is purely discretionary and thus not subject to review by this Court. Accordingly, this Court FINDS that it does not have jurisdiction under the APA.

IV. Plaintiff’s Request for Relief under the Declaratory Judgment Act

Additionally, the Declaratory Judgment Act (DJA), 28 U.S.C. § 2201, does not provide an independent basis for jurisdiction and only expands the range of remedies available in federal courts. Skelly Oil Co. v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 339 U.S. 667, 671-72 (1950); Janakes v. U.S. Postal Service, 768 F.2d 1091, 1093 (9th Cir. 1985) (the use of this statute “does not confer jurisdiction by itself if jurisdiction would not exist on the face of a well-pleaded complaint brought without the use of 28 U.S.C. § 2201.”). Since there is no jurisdiction, the DJA does not vest this court with subject matter jurisdiction.

Because the Court FINDS that it does not have subject matter jurisdiction, it is unnecessary to address Defendants’ claim that Plaintiff has failed to state a claim for which relief can be granted or, in the alternative, the matter should be remanded to the USCIS.

Conclusion

For the reasons stated above, the Court GRANTS Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss or Alternatively, to Remand to the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
